

Compromise

Noun

an agreement or settlement of a dispute that is reached by each side making concessions.

Use this word correctly in your work in any subject this week for a House Point.

Synonyms

- Agreement
- Settlement
- Understanding

Sentences containing the noun 'compromise':

- The family struggled to make a compromise as to what film to see at the cinema.
- The businessman refused to make any compromises during the negotiation.
- A successful relationship requires sacrifices and compromises.

Antonyms

- Dispute
- Disagreement
- Quarrel

Word of the Week

Compromise

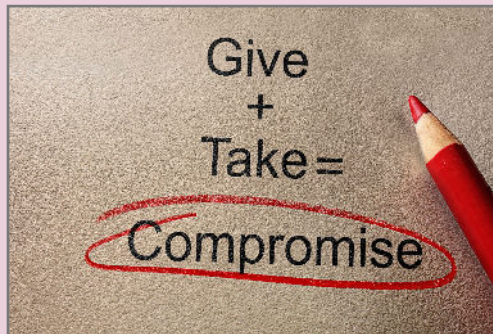

Noun

an agreement or settlement of a dispute that is reached by each side making concessions.

Compromising to reach a common goal.

What makes a successful compromise?

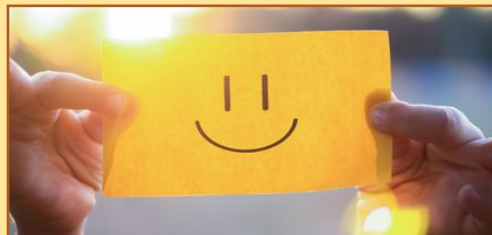

What steps do you need to take for a successful compromise?

It's important to make compromises in friendships and relationships, it helps maintain healthy relationships and mutual respect.

However, there are some things you should never compromise on.

Can you think of any examples?

Languages!

French: un compromis

Spanish: arreglo (m)

Mandarin: 折中 zhe zhong

Reflect!

Can you think of an example when you have made a compromise.

How did it make you feel afterwards?